Dear Friends,

We are grateful that year after year you have chosen to promote the welfare of children and families throughout the United States by investing in Reach Out and Read.

Your steadfast support means that, in 2018, Reach Out and Read fulfilled all of our short-term financial obligations and closed out the year with significant long-term investments, providing even greater financial sustainability for our organization.

It is my honor to share with you that Scholastic Inc., under the leadership of Chief Executive Officer Richard Robinson, has provided Reach Out and Read with $500,000 to help seed our first-ever national endowment. Revenue from the investment of the endowment will be used to grow capacity, promote research and new ideas, and implement new technology. In celebration of our 30th anniversary in 2019, we’ve set a $2 Million goal for the endowment.

We are so grateful that you have partnered with us on this journey and look forward to celebrating our 30th anniversary with you!

With gratitude,

Tom DeWitt, MD, FAAP
Chair of the Board

Dear Partners,

Thank you. Because of you, we continue to grow at a rate of 5% annually, reaching more children, more families, and more pediatric providers than ever before. I am honored to share with you a few highlights from the past year.

Great strides were made in securing public funding in several states, including Georgia, Massachusetts, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Washington State, and with your support our individual donor base has grown by one-third over the past two years. I am honored to mention our partners at the Heising-Simons Foundation and NCR Foundation who provided crucial funding for the special initiatives highlighted in this report.

This increased funding ensures that millions of infants and toddlers will benefit from the critical role that reading and language-rich interactions play in their early brain development and ability to learn and succeed throughout their lives.

Thank you for making a difference.

Brian Gallagher
Chief Executive Officer
Reach Out and Read trains pediatric providers nationwide to coach parents at all infant and toddler well visits about the critical role that reading and language-rich interactions play in their daily routine, starting at birth.
Reach Out and Read held our annual Leadership Conference on May 16-18, 2018. More than 150 medical providers, experts and researchers in pediatrics, literacy, and early childhood development gathered at Cincinnati Children’s Hospital in Ohio. We were warmly welcomed and hosted by Board Chair Dr. Tom DeWitt, Director of General and Community Pediatrics at Cincinnati Children’s Hospital, and his team.

Participants learned about the latest research in our field from thought leaders such as Ariel Kalil, PhD, of the Behavioral Insights and Parenting Lab at the University of Chicago. John Hutton, MD, Assistant Professor, University of Cincinnati, Department of Pediatrics and Adriana Weisleder, PhD, Assistant Professor, Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders, Northwestern University, discussed the latest research on parent-child interactions and early childhood brain development. Reach Out and Read Executive Directors and Program staff shared new and innovative ways to increase program quality and fidelity, as well as efforts to enhance our brand awareness in order to attract more pediatric practices and corporate partners.

This was our largest conference to date, and represented the work of more than 6,000 program sites and 32,000 practitioners across the country. Pleased with the powerful turn-out by the network, Dr. DeWitt said, “What we did at our National Leadership Conference will ripple out into our national network.”
Our Impact

“An idea tells a thousand words. The Reach Out and Read pediatrician on the left has coached this young mother on the power of loving her child through reading aloud. She may not be thinking about the broader impact of this moment, but this interaction and all the ones like this to come are essential to her baby’s future success. We know that 80 percent of all brain development happens in the first three years of life. Here, we see a mother embracing this reading experience, and all the benefits it brings, starting in infancy. That is what Reach Out and Read is all about.”

Brian Gallagher, Chief Executive Officer

Chris Garber, Executive Director, Reach Out and Read Connecticut and Massachusetts; Nate McNamara, Senior Grantwriter and Joel Horwich, Grantwriter, listen intently to the latest research on early brain development being presented at the Leadership Conference.

“The ideas we discussed keep Reach Out and Read moving forward, so that we remain at the forefront of early childhood development, especially for children growing up in poverty.”

Tom DeWitt, MD, FAAP, Board Chair, Reach Out and Read

“The Heising-Simons Foundation is proud to support Reach Out & Read’s Early Math Initiative, which trains medical providers to raise awareness and provide guidance among families about the importance of building children’s foundational math skills before the age of five. Research reveals that early mathematical skills correlate more strongly with later academic success than any other early indicator.”

Kimberly Brenneman, Program Officer, Heising-Simons Foundation

For almost three decades, Reach Out and Read has worked with a network of volunteer medical providers to promote early literacy and rich parent-child interactions during routine pediatric exams. With a transformational gift of $914,000 from the Heising-Simons Foundation, we are exploring how we can enhance our proven core model to foster foundational math skills and promote “math talk” as a way for parents to interact with their young children. Our pilot showed that early math offers a promising enhancement of our core model, one that merits refining and expanding.

Nikki Shearman, Reach Out and Read’s Chief of Strategic Initiatives, explains the initiative: “Initially, we are focusing on implementing a limited study, working with 1,000 families in five states. Together with the leaders from these affiliates, we have created a protocol, a provider training, a suite of early math materials and an evaluation process. We have just started sharing early math enhancement with the families and children that we serve and the response so far has been highly enthusiastic.”

GUIDE UPDATES

“At NCR Foundation we believe potential is distributed equally; opportunity, however, is not. Through our support of the Developmental Disabilities Promotion Guide we are providing the opportunities for children with developmental challenges and their families to interact and develop reading and listening skills very early in their development so they can progress to their fullest potential!”

Yvonne Whittaker, Foundation Lead, NCR Foundation

Our Developmental Disabilities Literacy Promotion Guide was created for primary care providers who treat infants and children with developmental challenges and provide support, advice, and helpful resources to their families. Since the original guide was produced ten years ago, there has been a boom in research related to autism, reading disabilities, and learning challenges, which gave us a wealth of resources for meaningfully adapting the information and resources we had been providing.

“Widespread developmental and behavioral screening in primary health care settings has led to an increase in the number of infants and young children who are identified with various developmental issues at increasingly early ages. As a result, families are more frequently turning to providers for information and guidance. This project applies our model and addresses emergent literacy in infants and children with disabilities, providing support to providers in working with this group of children and their families.”

Monica Ultnman, MD, Director of Developmental-Behavioral Pediatrics, Tufts Medical Center

“Dr. Jay Berkelhamer played an instrumental role in securing initial funding to launch the Reach Out and Read Georgia state office in 2012 and remains actively involved on both a National and local level. His depth of understanding of early education issues and passion to serve and give back have been a tremendous asset to our organization. We are fortunate he will remain on the Reach Out and Read Georgia Advisory Board. We extend our deepest gratitude to our friend and children’s champion, Jay Berkelhamer.”

Amy Erickson, Executive Director

“Reach Out and Read Colorado is incredibly fortunate to claim Ann Logan as a member of our family. As one of our founders, Ann’s leadership in every capacity from writing grants and hosting booths at community events to coordinating successful fundraisers, as well as serving as Board Chair of our organization, has pushed Reach Out and Read Colorado forward and positioned us for great success. I’m honored and humbled to lead the organization that she helped to found almost 15 years ago and to consider her a personal friend.”

Rob has been an influential supporter and has opened many doors for us. We will miss him!”
